Q=A highlightsQ+AQQuestion EverythingZogZog And The Flying Doctors The Zoo Press Release - September 22, 2020This ABC's Trace podcast has today revealed that underworld informer Nicola Gobbo left her overseas hiding spot in a tense standoff with police. The defence barrister known as Lawyer X told Trace that soon after her return to Australia in December, Victoria Police issued her with an ultimatum: go back into hiding, or risk not living with your children. Victoria Police has argued that her children mightn't be safe living with her in Australia because of threats from underworld crime figures, but Nicola claims the police force is trying to keep her under its control. Nicola Gobbo has disappeared again, into what she has called a 'black hole', and the ABC doesn't know her whereabouts. The remarkable story of Nicola Gobbo's return to Australia is told in the final episode of Trace: The Informer, including details of a bizarre chain of police escorts that transported the family across three states. The new revelations cap off an eight-part podcast series covering Nicola Gobbo's life story and the reasons behind her decision to turn police informer. A new behind-the-scenes documentary The Making of Trace: The Informer will also premiere on ABC iview next week, detailing the inside story of how journalists Rachael Brown and Josie Taylor tracked down Nicola Gobbo in hiding overseas, while delving into the complex and dangerous world of gangland criminals, police, and lawyers to tell the story of 'Lawyer X'. It's a chase worthy of a spy story - encrypted messages, data drops, and secret international rendezvous. ABC iview's straightforward interface puts the content first—surfacing recommended shows and curated collections so you'll always have something to watch. Plus, a smart parental filter means you can rest easy when the kids are enjoying some screen time. Hi! love love love abc and watch it ALL THE TIME! This app is a lifesaver compared to all those other expensive hard to use apps! I definitely recommend using this app as you will be blown away! To improve this almost perfect app I would..... add more programs for teenagers. There is almost no content for teens to watch. There is content for younger kids and adults but I have looked and looked but what shows do teens watch? I find myself continuing to watch the same things (not that is bad or anything.....) but add more content number one. Number 2 add some new shows! Often there is shows from 2013 but I never find new shows all my friends rave on about these news shows they find on other programs butn I want to watch the babysitters club and not have to pay $30 to netflix! Other than these small issues (easily fixed) I love abc and can not even describe how much I love it! I generally love this app especially being able to continue watching as you switch apps where it o relays your screen. Tip: If you hold the app icon you can jump into your content quickly. -1 star for having to select "who's watching" ever time I login. A phone is a personal device - remember me and let me take extra steps to switch my profile if need be (in a rare to never event). Also if the app could remember my last activity (like watching ABC News) and allow me to continue watching right away from the first screen I enter on, it saves me selecting who's watching, scrolling to the ABC News live stream and clicking play when the page opens. Hello AlonBerman. If only use one profile on ABC iview and you may notice that we have reduced the amount of times we ask "Who's Watching" on our latest update (5.1.0). You could also add your favourite live stream to your Watchlist to save you on the scroll and additional taps. Hope this helps! Currently iview video content can only be viewed by users in Australia.[1] As of 2016, ABC iview attracts around 50 million plays monthly and accounts for around half of the total time streamed by Australian TV video services.[2] History After running for several months in beta form under the name "ABC Playback", the service became available as a Flash website in July 2008.[1] This was the next step after the video podcasting of ABC TV programs since July 2006. The iview Flash website was redesigned in 2009 and 2010, to cater for a large increase in content. An iOS app for iPads was launched in December 2010, followed by a mobile version for iPhone in June 2012. An iview Android app supporting phones and tablets on Android 4.0.3 and above was released on 18 December 2013.[3] Over the following years, iview was released to a range of Smart TVs, games consoles and other devices. Content and programming ABC iview provides on-demand access to almost all the TV programs that are broadcast on the ABC's linear broadcast channels (ABC TV, ABC TV Plus, ABC Me, ABC Kids, ABC News), as well as simulcast live streams of those channels and original content and programs acquired exclusively for ABC iview. Programs are categorised by these genres: Arts Culture Comedy Documentary Drama Education Lifestyle News and current affairs Panel and discussion Regional Australia Sport In September 2015, the ABC added a dedicated Arts channel to iview.[4] Some shows premiere on iview before they feature on broadcast television, such as Rake and the BBC's Class.[5][6] Live streams In late 2010, a live stream of ABC News 24 was made available on the iview website, and then subsequently on iOS and Android apps. On 1 December 2015, a simulcast live stream of the main ABC TV channel was added to the iview website, iOS and Android apps.[7] On 18 July 2016, the ABC added simulcast live streams for all the remaining broadcast channels (ABC2/ABC Kids, ABC3).[8] On 1 May 2018, the ABC added state-based streams (VIC, QLD, TAS, NT, NSW, WA, SA, ACT) of ABC's main channel.[9] Devices and access ABC iview logo between 2008-2014 Website The iview website streams video at up to 4,500Kbps [10] using HTML5 based technology. In 2012 the ABC sent a legal notice to the author of an open source program called Python-View which enabled users to download videos from the ABC.[14] Other download tools such as youtube-dl continue to claim support for unofficially downloading from the site.[15] Unmetering In late 2008 the iview website video player was updated to allow for unmetering (zero-rating) by several Australian ISPs through network peering arrangements. The ISPs included Internode,[16] iPrimus,[17] Westnet, Apex Internet and Adam Internet. iNet was able to offer iview unmetered without the peering upgrade. In addition, AARNet, Cinenet, and Comcen since offer unmetered access to iview.[18] ABC TV live streams and content not streamed using Adobe Flash (i.e. through the iPad and Internet connected TVs) is currently not unmetered, however this may change in the future.[19] In October 2016, Optus added ABC iview to their zero-rating offer for Optus mobile customers.[20] See also Television portal Australia portal Internet television in Australia List of Internet television providers List of streaming media services References ^ a b "The Television Revolution Has Begun!" The service launched on 27 January 2016, replacing Nine's previous service 9Jumpin. 9Now offers online live streaming of Channel 9, 9Gem, 9Go!, 9Life and 9Rush, as well as live news via 9news.com.au.[1][2] In 2016, 9Now was at the centre of a legal challenge by then Nine regional television partner WIN Television, which helped contribute to an affiliation swaps for Nine and competitor Network 10. Since its launch, 9Now has been the Australian market leader in asking consumers to provide their details in order to view its content. As of January 2019, Nine claims to have more than 7m signups to its platform.[3] History 2010–2013: FIXPlay On 12 April 2010, as a part of its online entertainment brand TheFIX, the Ninemsn Company released FIXPlay, an online video on demand catch-up TV service for the Nine Network, incorporating locally produced programs from Nine and GO! along with back-catalogue content from local and international distributors.[4][5] FIXPlay became the second catch-up TV service released by a commercial Australian network, the first being PLUS7 from Yahoo7 and the Seven Network. 2012–2013: Jump-in On 26 July 2012, Nine released Jump-in, a trial social television app on iPhone and iPad for its coverage of the 2012 Summer Olympic Games. The app allowed users to view information on the television broadcast, set reminders and comment on events, view the full Olympic schedule, latest medal tally, event results, news coverage and video highlights.[6] After its success throughout the Olympics, Jump-in was commercially launched on 4 February 2013 as an interactive television app that allowed viewers a behind-the-scenes insight into select television series, voting and posting live comments on select television series (that would appear on-screen), and entering competitions.[7] 2013–2016: 9Jumpin 9Jumpin logo On 8 November 2013, FIXPlay was merged into Jump-in, later renamed to 9Jumpin in May 2014, integrating catch-up TV with interactive social media.[8] The app's original interactive TV features were integrated into its new website, while new catch-up content was now available on mobile devices. The 9Jumpin website was closed on 28 January 2016, one day after the silent launch of 9Now. 2016–present: 9Now In October 2015, with the upcoming launch of 9Life and relaunch of 9HD and looming network-wide rebrand, Nine announced that 9Jumpin would be replaced with an entirely new service called 9Now. Pete Wiltshire, chief revenue officer of Nine Entertainment Co., stated that "[9Jumpin] was never designed to be streaming product and it isn't" and announced that the purpose-built 9Now service will replace 9Jumpin as Nine's on-demand catch-up TV service with a wider range of content, while also delivering live streaming of Channel 9, 9Gem, 9Go! and 9Life.[9] 9Now was described as "a premium destination for live streaming, catch-up and on-demand content for all of the Nine Network's linear channels".[1] The 9Now website and app were launched on 27 January 2016 along with live streaming for Nine, with live streaming for the multichannels to launch on a later date.[10][11] However, unlike competitors 7plus, ABC iview, SBS on Demand, and 10play, 9Now requires users to create an account before allowing access to catch-up content and live streaming.[2] Livestreams for 9Go!, 9Gem and 9Life were launched on 17 May 2016. Following the launch of 9Now, Nine's main regional affiliate WIN Television sued Nine Entertainment Co., alleging that the service violated its program supply agreement by broadcasting Nine programming into territories where it held exclusive rights.[12][13] Justice Hammerschlag of the NSW Supreme Court dismissed the case on 28 April 2016, ruling that Nine had the right to stream its programming nationally because the affiliation agreement's definition of "broadcasting" did not cover live internet streaming.[14][15] Nine's victory prompted network executives to revoke WIN's affiliation with the network beyond June 2016, and enter into a new regional affiliation with Southern Cross Austereo (WIN would concurrently switch to Network 10).[16][17][18] See also Television portal Australia portal Stan Internet television in Australia List of Internet television providers References ^ a b Reilly, Claire (29 October 2015).
